

Community Health Development Practitioners

As a Community Health Development team we act as the link between communities and a range of other local authority and voluntary sector providers. We focus on work to engage with communities on the issues which affect their lives. We aim to build the assets, strengths, skills and organisational capacities of carers, families, volunteers and communities. In our roles we are responsible for services across each stage of the life course and work in all geographic settings, including rural and urban areas. We adopt a specialised community development approach focusing on specific topics such as mental health, prison health, sexual health and homelessness, older people, physical activity and early year's intervention.
